My dear Mr. Brewster

I have just received your letter of the 21st inst. in regard to the loan of the Colaptes auratus to the Acridothera tristis. I am glad to hear that you have taken an interest in the subject. I have no objection to your making a loan of the bird to you. I have a number of them in my collection and I am sure you will find them very interesting.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some faint smudges and discoloration, particularly towards the edges. On the left side, the binding of the book is visible, showing the inner cover material and the stitching. The overall tone of the page is a warm, off-white or light cream.
